MARCH IS DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITY AWARENESS MONTH

Join us for a free Developmental Disability (DD) Awareness Film Festival! View short films on people with developmental disabilities (including the deaf/blind community) who live in diverse communities near and far.

People with developmental disabilities share the same dreams and desires of all Alaskans: to be successful, independent, contribute to the workforce in a meaningful way, and have strong lasting ties to their communities.

Public awareness and understanding are valuable ways to address the barriers individuals with developmental disabilities face, and to educate the public on supporting individuals as they connect to their communities.

A panel of local professionals will be present to answer questions about the films and developmental disabilities in Alaska.
