

If you are concerned about a child's development

don't wait...

Your referral to the Infant Learning Program is critical.

For a list of Alaska's Infant Learning Programs statewide, log on to: hss.state.ak.us/ocs/InfantLearning or call toll free in Alaska: 1 (877) HSS-FMLY (477-3659)

in Anchorage: 269-8442

What is the Infant Learning Program (ILP) and who is eligible for referral?

The program provides early intervention services for children 0-3 years of age who are at risk for, or have developmental delays and/or disabilities.

Why should I refer?

The sooner a referral is made, the better. Referral of a child with developmental delays or disabilities will help the child and family benefit from early intervention services and enhance early childhood development.

What is the cost?

No family will be denied services due to inability to pay. Medicaid, Denali KidCare, private insurance and family co-pay are accepted.

What ILP offers families:

- Developmental screening and evaluation
- Hearing and vision screening
- Family service coordination
- Early educational services
- Support or play groups and social services
- Developmental Services: developmental therapies, physical occupational and speech language therapy

What happens after age 3?

ILP will provide the necessary information and assist with transition to the child's local school district, Head Start, childcare or other appropriate setting.

State of Alaska
Department of Health & Social Services
Office of Children's Services

Alaska Early Intervention • Infant Learning Program
in Anchorage 269-8442

1 (877) HSS-FMLY (477-3659) • hss.state.ak.us/ocs/Infantlearning/